COURSE OVERVIEW

Research is often described as systematic process of inquiry aimed at discovering, interpreting, and revising facts. Research is the term applied to any form of systematic and organized investigation to establish facts or collect information, and is usually related to a problem that need to be solved.

The core concept underlying all research is its methodology. It is not enough to follow the research procedure without an intimate understanding that research methodology directs the whole endeavor where critical decisions are made and where organizing, planning and directing the whole project take place. The methodology controls the study, dictates the acquisition of the data, arranges them in logical relationships, set up a means of refining the raw data, and finally issues conclusions that lead to an expansion of knowledge.

This course is intended to present the concept and principles of research and to advise how to set out, implement, and complete research project.
